INTRODUCTORY NOTE

The entries in this index are arranged alphabetically by title under each subject. It includes all contributed articles of present instructional or administrative value and all items of present practical application contained in the Editorials, Notes for Librarians or 'Round the Circle. Articles or items descriptive of methods or topics, which are now out-of-date have been omitted and will be found only in the annual indexes. The occasional book list has been included only when it was considered to be of permanent value, rather than temporary interest.

It is evident then, that articles of purely historical interest, articles of regularly recurring events such as the Annual Meeting of the Wisconsin Library Association, notes concerning the Library School of the University of Wisconsin, articles which show the growth of individual libraries, and also articles so closely identified with the year of their occurrence, as reports of the Library Conferences, for example, have been omitted.

The form of entry under each subject is: title, author, volume number, paging, month and year. The citation is given in abbreviated form; e. g., 18:221-23 Je 22. The first figures refer to the volume, the second to the paging, then the month is given in "library abbreviation" followed by the last two figures of the year.
